

Northern Frontiers Mediation & Counselling Property Agreement Coaching

*Recently separated and can't agree on who gets what?
Does the thought of a lengthy court battle give you nightmares?
There is a better way.*

Property Agreement Coaching – How it Works:

Northern Frontiers provides coaching to help you work out how to divide your assets and end the financial relationship you have with your ex-partner. Your coach will assist in identifying the combined property pool and exploring options for property division along with actions needed to complete each option. What you end up with is a well-developed Property Proposal that can be presented to the other party for their consideration in finalising your financial relationship. If agreement is reached you are advised to seek legal advice around formalising the agreement.

Benefits of Property Agreement Coaching:

- Reduce the need for court action
- Save time and money on legal fees
- Receive guidance from a friendly experienced professional in a confidential setting
- Limit ongoing conflict with your ex-partner by presenting a well-considered proposal that includes actions for completion
- If children are involved, limit disruption to their financial support by resolving issues quickly.

At any stage of the coaching process either party can request mediation, which is basically a facilitated discussion process for parties who cannot reach agreement between themselves.

Pricing:

Property Agreement Coaching sessions are charged at $110.00 for a standard 50 minute session. Longer sessions can be arranged. Northern Frontiers offers flexible session times from 7am weekdays and 8am Sundays. Sessions can be in-person or via phone/video chat.

Disclaimer:

All Northern Frontiers' coaching and mediation services are directed by the Family Law Act 1975 however we do not provide legal advice. Disputant parties are therefore advised to seek legal advice from a family law lawyer throughout the separation process. Referrals are available upon request.